ADVISORY OPINION 2004-29

Cleta Mitchell, Esq.
Foley & Lardner LLP
3000 K Street, N.W., Suite 500
Washington, DC 20007-5143

Dear Ms. Mitchell:

This responds to your letters dated July 20, 2004, and August 6, 2004, requesting an advisory opinion concerning the application of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, as amended (“the Act”), and Commission regulations, to the involvement of Representative Todd Akin and Todd Akin for Congress (“the PCC”) in support of, and opposition to, certain Missouri ballot initiatives.

Background

Representative Todd Akin is a member of Congress, and is a candidate for reelection in the November 2, 2004 general election.

In Missouri, citizens may use the ballot initiative process to change State laws and the State Constitution. Mo. Const., Art. III, Sec. 49, 50, 51, 52(a), 52(b), and 53; Art. XII, Sec. 2(b). The August 3, 2004 primary ballot in all Missouri Congressional districts included two ballot initiatives. These two ballot initiatives proposed to amend the State Constitution to expand gambling in Missouri (“the Gambling Amendment”) and to state that for a marriage to be valid and recognized in Missouri, it must be between a man and a woman (“the Defense of Marriage Amendment”). The Gambling Amendment did not pass while the Defense of Marriage Amendment did. You state that initiatives on these issues are likely to be on Missouri ballots again. Representative Akin opposes the Gambling Amendment and supports the Defense of Marriage Amendment.

You indicate that both as a member of the Missouri legislature and subsequently as a member of Congress, Representative Akin has been known within Missouri as the leader of efforts to enact the Defense of Marriage Amendment. Representative Akin is also one of the primary sponsors of H.J. Res. 56, 108th Cong. (2003), known as the Federal Marriage Amendment, and H.R. 3313, the Marriage Protection Act of 2003. You state that Representative Akin's constituents and campaign supporters called upon him to lead the effort to help promote passage of the Defense of Marriage Amendment on the August 3, 2004 primary ballot, and Representative Akin did so.

Similarly, you state that Representative Akin has been a long time opponent of expanded casino gambling in Missouri and is known as the primary anti-gambling leader in Missouri. You state that Representative Akin is dedicated to his positions on gambling and marriage and he pledged his ongoing and visible involvement with these issues during his campaigns for Congress.

You state that Representative Akin was not involved in establishing any of the ballot initiative committees now in existence that oppose the Gambling Amendment or support the Defense of Marriage Amendment.¹ You state that none of these ballot initiative committees are political committees under the Act and Commission regulations.

Legal Analysis and Conclusions

(1) Is it permissible under 2 U.S.C. 439a for Representative Akin to use contributions accepted by the PCC to make donations to a ballot initiative committee established to support the Defense of Marriage Amendment, or to oppose the Gambling Amendment, or to other ballot initiative committees that focus on the defense of marriage or on gambling in Missouri?

Yes, these donations are permissible because in the situation you describe, these uses of contributions by Representative Akin will be in connection with his campaign for reelection.

The Act, as amended by the Bipartisan Campaign Reform Act of 2002 ("BCRA"), Pub. L. No. 107-155, 116 Stat. 81 (2002), lists four categories of permissible uses of contributions received by a Federal candidate: (1) otherwise authorized expenditures in connection with the candidate's campaign for Federal office; (2) ordinary and necessary expenses incurred in connection with the duties of the individual as a holder of Federal office; (3) contributions to organizations described in 26 U.S.C. 170(c); and (4) transfers, without limitation, to national, State or local political party committees. 2 U.S.C. 439a; see also 11 CFR 113.2(a), (b), and (c).²

As described in your request, Representative Akin's support for the Defense of Marriage Amendment and opposition to the Gambling Amendment were integral parts of his reelection campaign. Representative Akin's donating campaign funds to ballot initiative committees on the defense of marriage and on gambling are in connection with his campaign for Federal office.³ Thus, these donations are permissible under 2 U.S.C. 439a(a)(1).⁴ Because these donations are permissible as disbursements in connection with Representative Akin's campaign for Federal office, it is not necessary to analyze whether the donations are "ordinary and necessary expenses incurred in connection with the duties of the individual as a holder of Federal office." See 2 U.S.C. 439a(a)(2).

² Such uses must not, however, result in the conversion of campaign funds to "personal use" by any person. 2 U.S.C. 439a(b)(1) and (2).

(2) May Representative Akin solicit contributions for the PCC if the solicitation indicates that funds received may be donated to ballot initiative committees that supported his positions on the Defense of Marriage Amendment, or on the Gambling Amendment or that will address ballot initiatives on marriage or gambling?

Yes, Representative Akin may solicit contributions for the PCC in a solicitation that indicates that funds received may be donated to ballot initiative committees that support his position on the Defense of Marriage Amendment, or on the Gambling Amendment, or that will address ballot initiatives on marriage or gambling. The contributions received in response to the solicitation must be treated like any other contribution to the PCC and thus must comply with the amount limitations, source prohibitions, and reporting requirements of the Act. See 2 U.S.C. 434, 441a, 441b, 441c and 441e.

(3) May Representative Akin appear in newspaper, radio or television advertisements disseminated in his district before the November 2, 2004 general election that are paid for by Missourians for Marriage, the Coalition to Protect Marriage in Missouri or another ballot initiative committee in Missouri where the advertisements focus on ballot initiatives involving the defense of marriage? Does it make a difference if the PCC has contributed to the organization sponsoring the advertisements?

Representative Akin may appear in the advertisements but as explained below, the PCC will likely have to pay for the advertisements in order to avoid a violation of the Act's contribution limitations or prohibitions by Missourians for Marriage, the Coalition to Protect Marriage in Missouri or another ballot initiative committee in Missouri that may pay for the advertisements.

The Act has long defined as an in-kind contribution an expenditure made by any person "in cooperation, consultation, or concert, with, or at the request or suggestion of, a candidate, his authorized political committees, or their agents." 2 U.S.C. 441a(a)(7)(B)(i). The "coordinated communication” regulation at 11 CFR 109.21 implements section 441a(a)(7)(B) through a single three-pronged test: (1) the communication must be paid for by a person other than a Federal candidate, a candidate’s authorized committee, or political party committee, or any agent of any of the foregoing; (2) one or more of the four “content standards” set forth in 11 CFR 109.21(c) must be satisfied; and (3) one or more of the six “conduct standards” set forth in 11 CFR 109.21(d) must be satisfied. See 11 CFR 109.21(a). A payment for a communication satisfying each of the three prongs is made for the purpose of influencing a Federal election, and is an in-kind contribution to the candidate, authorized committee, or political party committee with whom or which it is coordinated, and must be reported as an expenditure made by that candidate, authorized committee or political party committee. 11 CFR 109.21(b)(1). Like other contributions, in-kind contributions must comply with the Act’s amount limitations, source prohibitions and reporting requirements. See, e.g., 2 U.S.C. 434, 441a(a), 441b, 441c, 441e, and 441f. The Commission explained that a payment for a “coordinated communication” “satisfies the statutory requirements for an expenditure in the specific context of coordinated communications, and thereby constitutes a contribution under 2 U.S.C. 441a(a)(7)(B)(i) and (ii).” Explanation and Justification for Coordinated and Independent Expenditures; Final Rules, 68 Fed. Reg. 421, 427 (Jan. 3, 2003).

³ Compare this advisory opinion with Advisory Opinion 2003-26, where refunds of improper contributions originally made to a candidate's State campaigns for governor from Federal contributions were found impermissible because the committee that received the contributions was terminated, because the proposed refunds would not be in connection with any of the candidate's campaigns for Federal office, and because there was no legal obligation to make the refunds.

A. Coordinated Communications – Payment source

The first prong of the definition of “coordinated communication” specifies that a communication is coordinated with a candidate or an authorized committee when the communication is paid for by “a person other than that candidate [or] authorized committee.” 11 CFR 109.21(a)(1). Payments by Missourians for Marriage, the Coalition to Protect Marriage in Missouri or another ballot initiative committee focused on marriage for the contemplated advertisements would satisfy the “payment source” test.

B. Coordinated Communications – Conduct

The second prong of the “coordinated communication” test is a “conduct standard” focusing on the interactions between the person paying for the communication and the candidate, an authorized committee, a political party committee, or agents of the foregoing. 11 CFR 109.21(a)(3). The conduct standards are set forth in 11 CFR 109.21(d)(1) through (5). The conduct standard is satisfied if, among other things, the Federal candidate, the candidate’s authorized committee, or one of their agents is materially involved in a decision regarding the content of the communication. 11 CFR 109.21(d)(2)(i). You state that Representative Akin wishes to appear in advertisements that will be paid for by a ballot initiative committee, and that he will “retain control over his appearance in any radio or television advertisement” and would either submit to the ballot committee any statement to be attributed to him, or would review any statement attributed to him. Recently, the Commission concluded that the conduct standard is met where a Federal candidate appears and speaks in a communication. The Commission stated:

Given the importance of and potential campaign implications for each public appearance by a Federal candidate, it is highly implausible that a Federal candidate would appear in a communication without being materially involved in one or more of the listed decisions regarding the communication ... To suggest that a candidate may personally approve the content of an advertisement without satisfying the conduct standard in 109.21(d)(2) would be to obviate that section of the regulations.

Advisory Opinion 2003-25; accord Advisory Opinion 2004-01 (stating that involvement by agents of the President in reviewing "the final script in advance of the President's appearance in the advertisements for legal compliance, factual accuracy, quality, consistency with the President's position and any content that distracts from or distorts the 'endorsement' message that the President wishes to convey" constitutes involvement by the President's agents, whenever it occurs, and constitutes material involvement for purposes of the conduct standard). Representative Akin will likewise be materially involved in decisions regarding the proposed communication because he retains control over his appearance in the advertisements and will either submit to the ballot committee any statement to be attributed to him, or will review any statement to be attributed to him. Thus, the conduct standard is met.

C. Coordinated Communications – Content

The third prong of the definition of "coordinated communication" provides four "content standards." 11 CFR 109.21(c)(1) through (4). The fourth content standard in 11 CFR 109.21(c)(4) encompasses "public communications," as defined in 11 CFR 100.26, that refer to a clearly identified candidate for Federal office, are publicly distributed or disseminated within 120 days of an election for Federal office, and are directed to voters within the jurisdiction of the clearly identified candidate.⁵ 11 CFR 109.21(c)(4). The advertisements in which Representative Akin appears will meet the definition of "public communication," and will refer to a clearly identified candidate for Federal office (Representative Akin). Those advertisements distributed on or after July 5, 2004 will be distributed within 120 days of the November 2, 2004 general election.

Further, the proposed advertisements are directed to voters within Representative Akin's Congressional district for purposes of section 109.21(c)(4). In promulgating this standard, the Commission stated that [t]he "directed to voters" requirement focuses on the intended audience of the communication, rather than a quantitative analysis of the number of possible recipients or the expected geographic limits of a particular media, that will be determined on a case-by-case basis from the content of the communication, its actual placement, and other objective indicators of the intended audience.

⁵ The communications may also meet one or more of the other content standards. For example, an advertisement will meet the content standard if it is (1) a communication that is an electioneering communication under 11 CFR 100.29; (2) a public communication that disseminates, distributes, or republishes, in whole or in part, campaign materials prepared by a candidate, the candidate's authorized committee, or an agent of any of the foregoing, unless excepted; or (3) a public communication that expressly advocates the election or defeat of a clearly identified candidate for Federal office. 11 CFR 109.21(c)(1) to (3).

Explanation and Justification for Coordinated and Independent Expenditures; Final Rules, 68 Fed. Reg. at 431. The intended audience of the proposed advertisements appears to be the voters in Missouri. Because Representative Akin's Congressional district represents a relatively significant portion of all intended viewers, the content and placement of the proposed advertisements indicate they are "directed to voters" in his Congressional district. Finally, the message is addressed to viewers as voters regarding the same election in which Representative Akin is a candidate.

Therefore, the definition of "coordinated communication" is met and consequently, payments for the advertisements will be in-kind contributions to the PCC.⁶ Because the cost of advertisements will likely exceed the contribution limits in 2 U.S.C. 441a(a) (and may also be from prohibited sources), the PCC must reimburse the sponsor of the advertisement for the attributable portion of the cost of these coordinated communications to avoid receiving an excessive or prohibited contribution. See Advisory Opinion 2004-01 (discussing a permissible allocation and attribution formula under 11 CFR 106.1(a)).⁷ Amounts that the PCC donates to the sponsor organization may be treated as payment for the advertisements if the PCC specifically indicates that this is the purpose of the donations.

(4) May Representative Akin appear in television, radio, or newspaper advertisements or other public communications before the November 2, 2004 general election in support of or in opposition to ballot initiatives on marriage or gambling where (1) such advertisements are both sponsored and paid for by the PCC, and are independent of any other organization or candidate; and where (2) the advertisements are disseminated in media markets that include areas both within and outside of his Congressional district? Must the advertisement include a reference to Representative Akin's candidacy for reelection or is a reference to his position as a member of the House of Representatives sufficient?

Payments by the PCC for these advertisements featuring Representative Akin are permissible uses of campaign contributions under section 439a(a), provided that the advertisements contain appropriate disclaimers and statements as discussed below.

Under the Act, all "public communications" by political committees must include a clear and conspicuous disclaimer indicating who paid for the communication and whether or not a candidate authorized it. See 2 U.S.C. 441d(a) and 11 CFR 110.11. There are no geographical conditions on the operation of section 441d. Thus, whether communications appear only in media markets entirely within Missouri's second Congressional district, or in media markets partly within and partly outside that district, does not affect the application of section 441d. As noted above, these advertisements will be "public communications" and thus must include disclaimers.

⁶ The district court decision in Shays v. FEC, Civil Action No. 02-1984 (D.D.C. Sept. 18, 2004), would not change the result in this advisory opinion.

In addition to section 441d(a) disclaimers, Representative Akin is also required to “stand by his ad.” See 2 U.S.C. 441d(d)(1). Specifically, television and radio communications that are authorized by a candidate must feature the voice (and image for television) of the candidate identifying himself or herself and stating that he or she has approved the communication.

Consequently, because these advertisements would be paid for and authorized by the PCC, the advertisements must include clear and conspicuous statements indicating that the PCC paid for the communication. 2 U.S.C. 441d(a) and 11 CFR 110.11. The advertisements must also include the voice, and image of Representative Akin if a television advertisement, stating that he approved the advertisement.⁸ Representative Akin may identify himself in the advertisements as a Member of Congress instead of as a candidate for reelection.

(5) May Representative Akin donate funds from the PCC to State and local candidates in Missouri to support his positions on marriage and gambling? If such donations are not permissible, must Representative Akin seek and obtain a refund of his prior donations?

Yes, Representative Akin may use contributions received by the PCC to make donations to candidates for State and local office in Missouri. Such donations in the situation you describe will be in connection with Representative Akin’s reelection campaign, and therefore will be permissible as “otherwise authorized expenditures in connection with the campaign for Federal office” for Representative Akin. 2 U.S.C. 439a(a)(1).⁹ Because these donations are permissible, Representative Akin need not seek or obtain refunds of his prior donations.

The Commission expresses no opinion regarding whether the activities you propose are permissible under Missouri law. The Commission also expresses no opinion regarding qualification by the ballot initiative committees for tax-exempt status under 26 U.S.C. 501(c)(4) or 527, or other ramifications of the proposed activities under the Internal Revenue Code because these questions are outside the Commission’s jurisdiction.

This response constitutes an advisory opinion concerning the application of the Act and Commission regulations to the specific transaction or activity set forth in your request. See 2 U.S.C. 437f. The Commission emphasizes that if there is a change in any of the facts or

⁹ The situation you describe is distinguishable from Advisory Opinion 2004-03 because, unlike Representative Akin, the requestor in that Advisory Opinion is a retiring Member of Congress who will not be running for reelection when seeking to make donations to non-Federal candidates and other non-party committees for State and local elections.
